

Restek Meets Milestone in Employee Safety

Putting people and safety first, Restek reaches 1,000,000 safe hours worked.

Bellefonte, PA – On March 10, Restek reached a significant new landmark: one million safe hours worked! By achieving so many consecutive hours without an occupational injury or illness that resulted in days away from work, Restek demonstrated its ongoing commitment to safety as a top corporate goal.

Bryan Wolcott, President and Head Coach, said, “Our people are our most important resource, and our mission here is to ensure that they end the day as healthy as they started the day. As employee-owners, we want everyone to go home as healthy as when they came in so that they can enjoy their families, be active in the community, and continue to help Restek grow.”

One million safe hours is no small feat, but it is achievable when safety is prioritized and people work together to promote it. According to Mike Straw, EHS Manager, Restek has programs in place that drive engagement in safe behaviors, which is the cornerstone to injury prevention. Says Straw, “An achievement like this is truly a group effort. It takes each and every employee making a daily personal commitment to safety in order to make it happen.”
